

Ali Pike, BCBA

Over the past 15 years, Ali has been a special education teacher for students ranging from ages 3 to 21 with varying disabilities, specializing in working with students with complex and challenging behaviors. While in the classroom she really focused on working collaboratively with families and teams to best meet the needs of her students. In 2017, she became a certified BCBA and brought the principles of behavior analysis into her daily teachings and team collaboration while always keeping what's best for her students and families at the forefront of all discussions. She is also a family member of someone who experiences a disability, and has lived the day to day celebrations and challenges that can bring to a family. Currently, Ali is part of the Behavior Analysis Training & Support Team with UAA's Center of Human Development.
