

Claudette Rushing:

Claudette is a Civil Rights Attorney with nearly ten years of experience working with special education disputes. She has worked as an attorney for the US Department of Education's Office for Civil Rights, was the state IDEA Legal Specialist for Oregon, and worked in general counsel roles for school districts. She also has served as a hearing officer and mediator for special education disputes and has trained vast numbers of parent groups and state agencies from across the country. Prior to her career in law, Ms. Rushing was a classroom teacher for both general and special education students and she loved working with gifted children with dyslexia. She is the mom of a wonderful child and enjoys hiking, reading, and spending time outdoors with family.
