

The background features a gradient from red at the top to blue at the bottom, overlaid with faint, semi-transparent circular patterns and numbers. On the left side, there are several concentric circles and arcs, some with tick marks and numbers ranging from 140 to 260. On the right side, there are more circular patterns, some with arrows indicating direction. The overall aesthetic is technical and futuristic.

PLANNING ALTERNATIVE TOMORROWS WITH HOPE

PARENT SESSION

KARA THRASHER-LIVINGSTON

Introductions

we are – parents

community members and.....

Let's talk about person centered planning –

going way back – people needed to fit into programs more recently – programs built to fit the person family has always been there!

community has always been there!

Our loved ones have the right to fully participate in community life to take reasonable risks and chances adult learning lasts life-long for all of us – it's not just k-12 school person centered planning needs a conscious commitment to create person centered outcomes!

The traditions -

MAPS (making action plans – like a map)

PATH

Essential Lifestyle planning

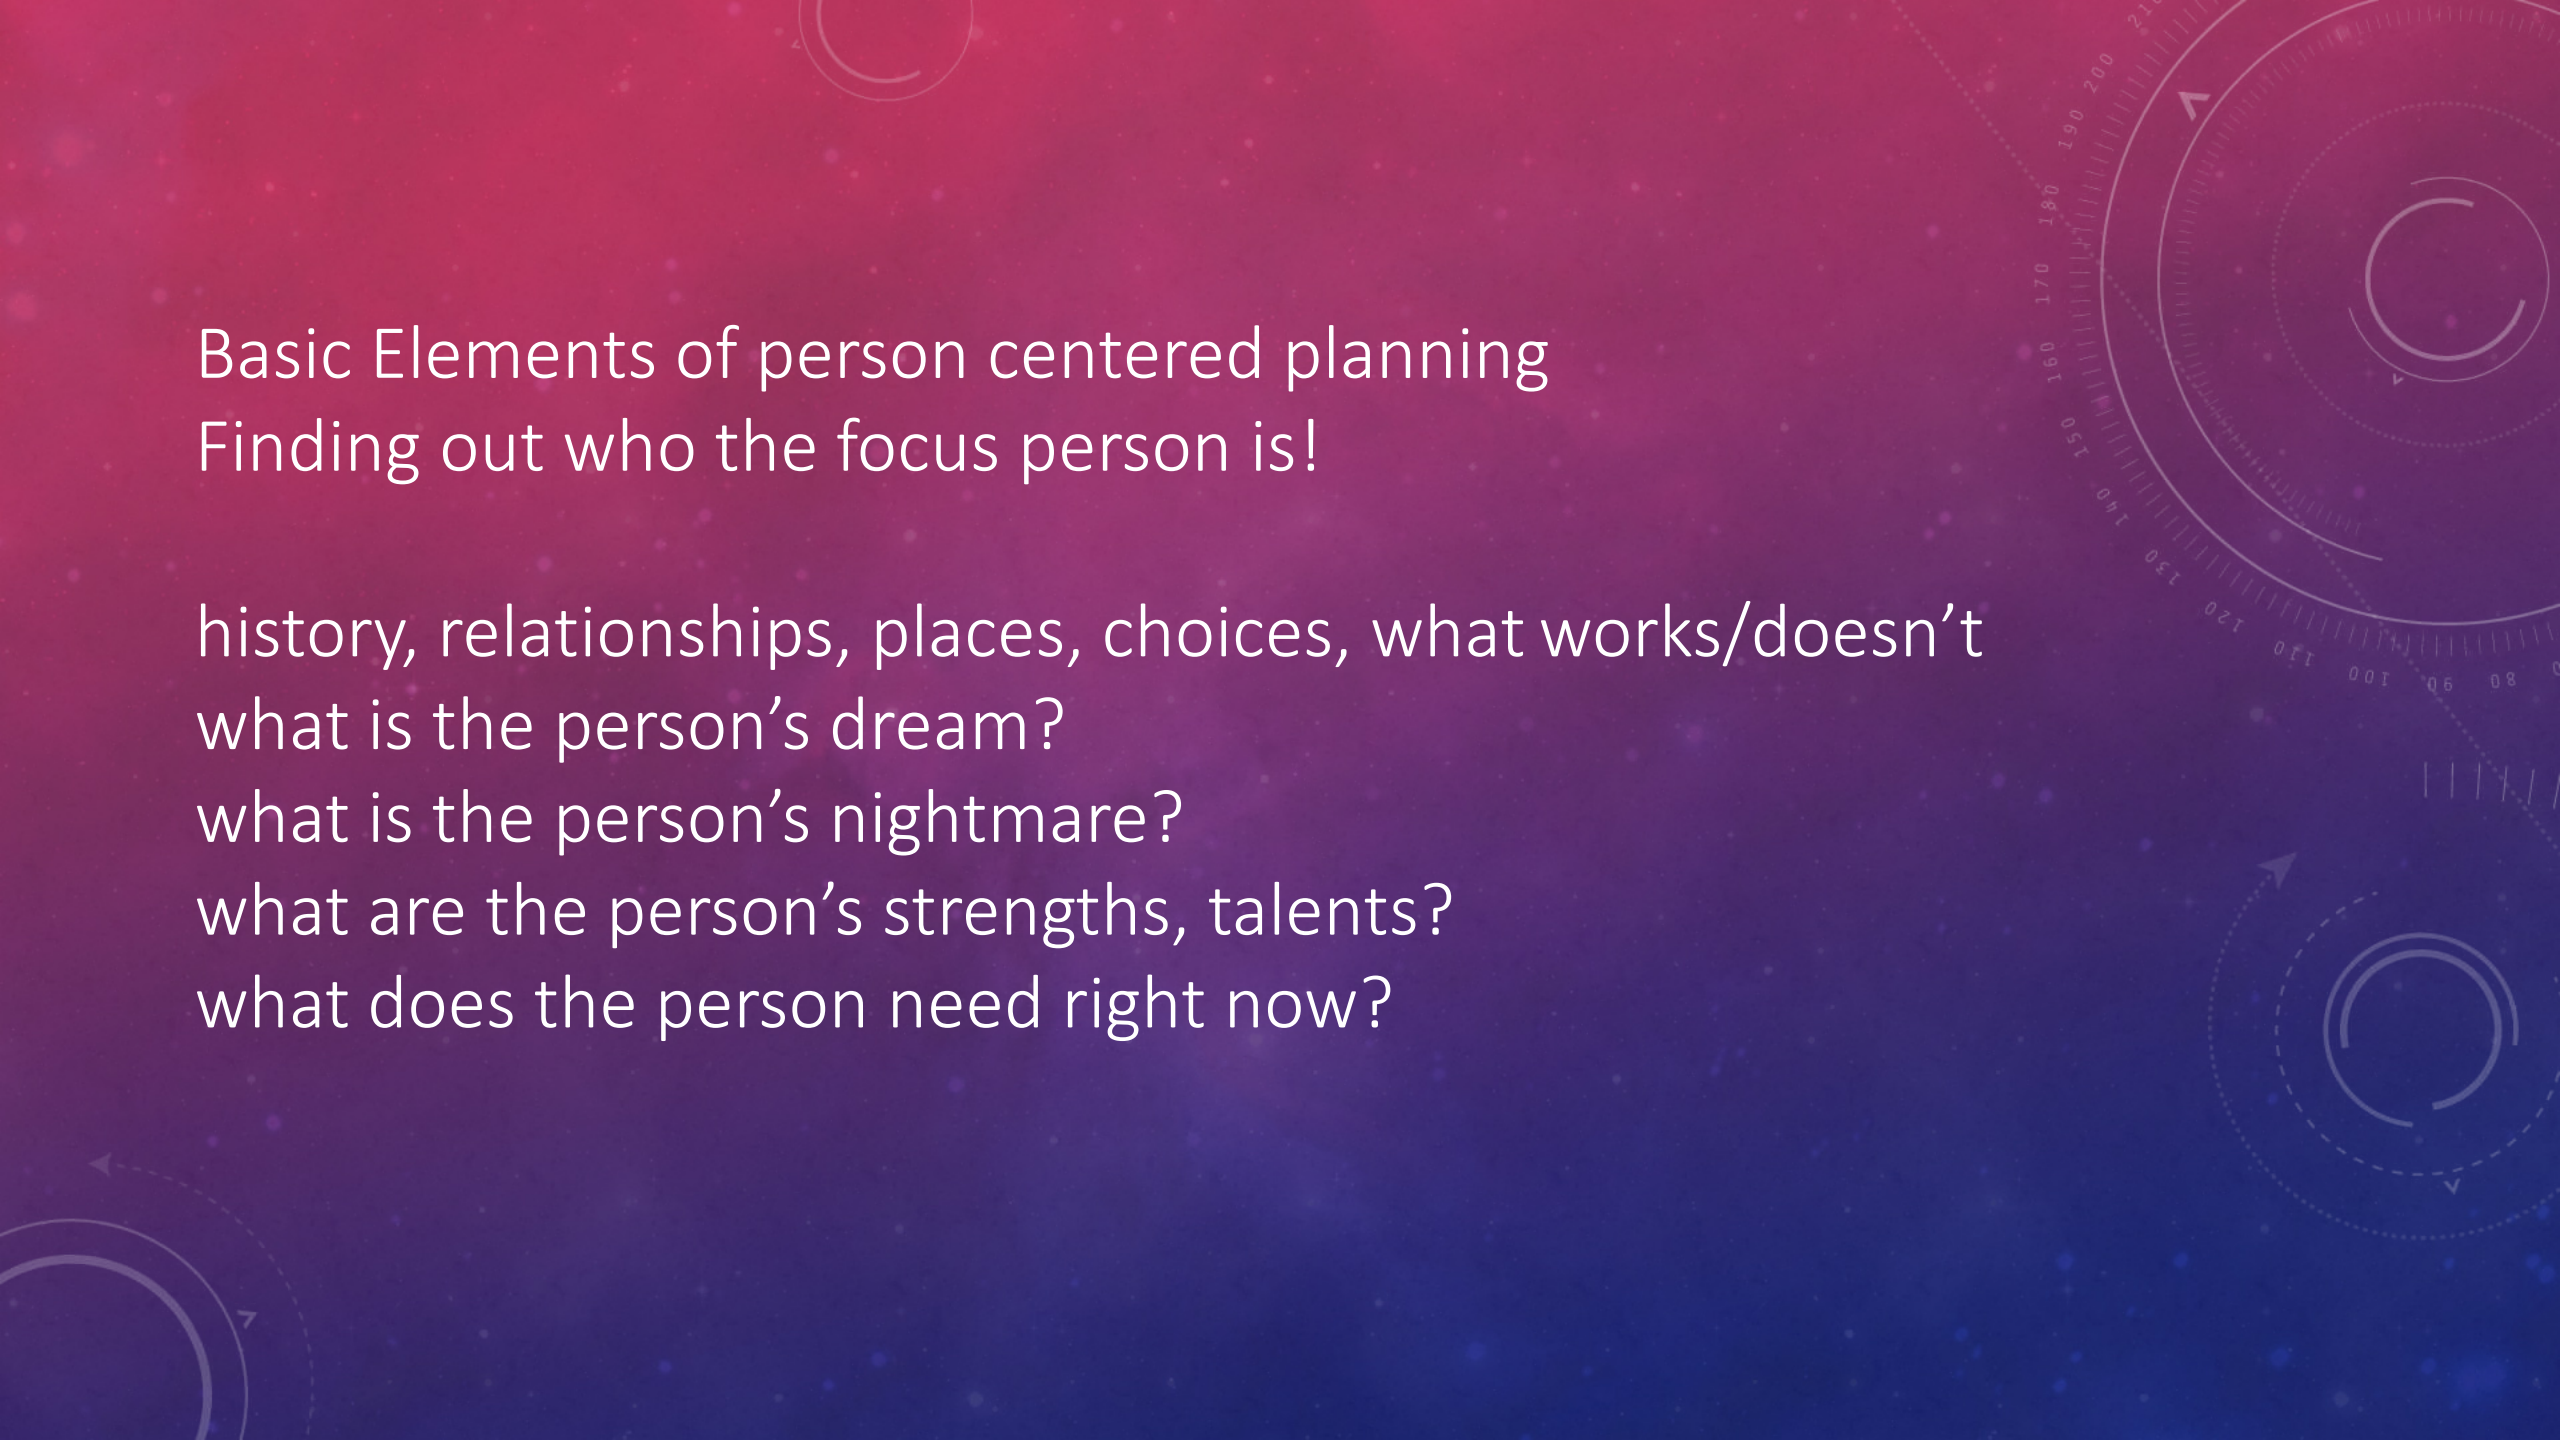

Personal Futures planning

Individual Service Design

Meeting and discussion methods give a visual shape to the person's story

Rachel's Path

Basic Elements of person centered planning

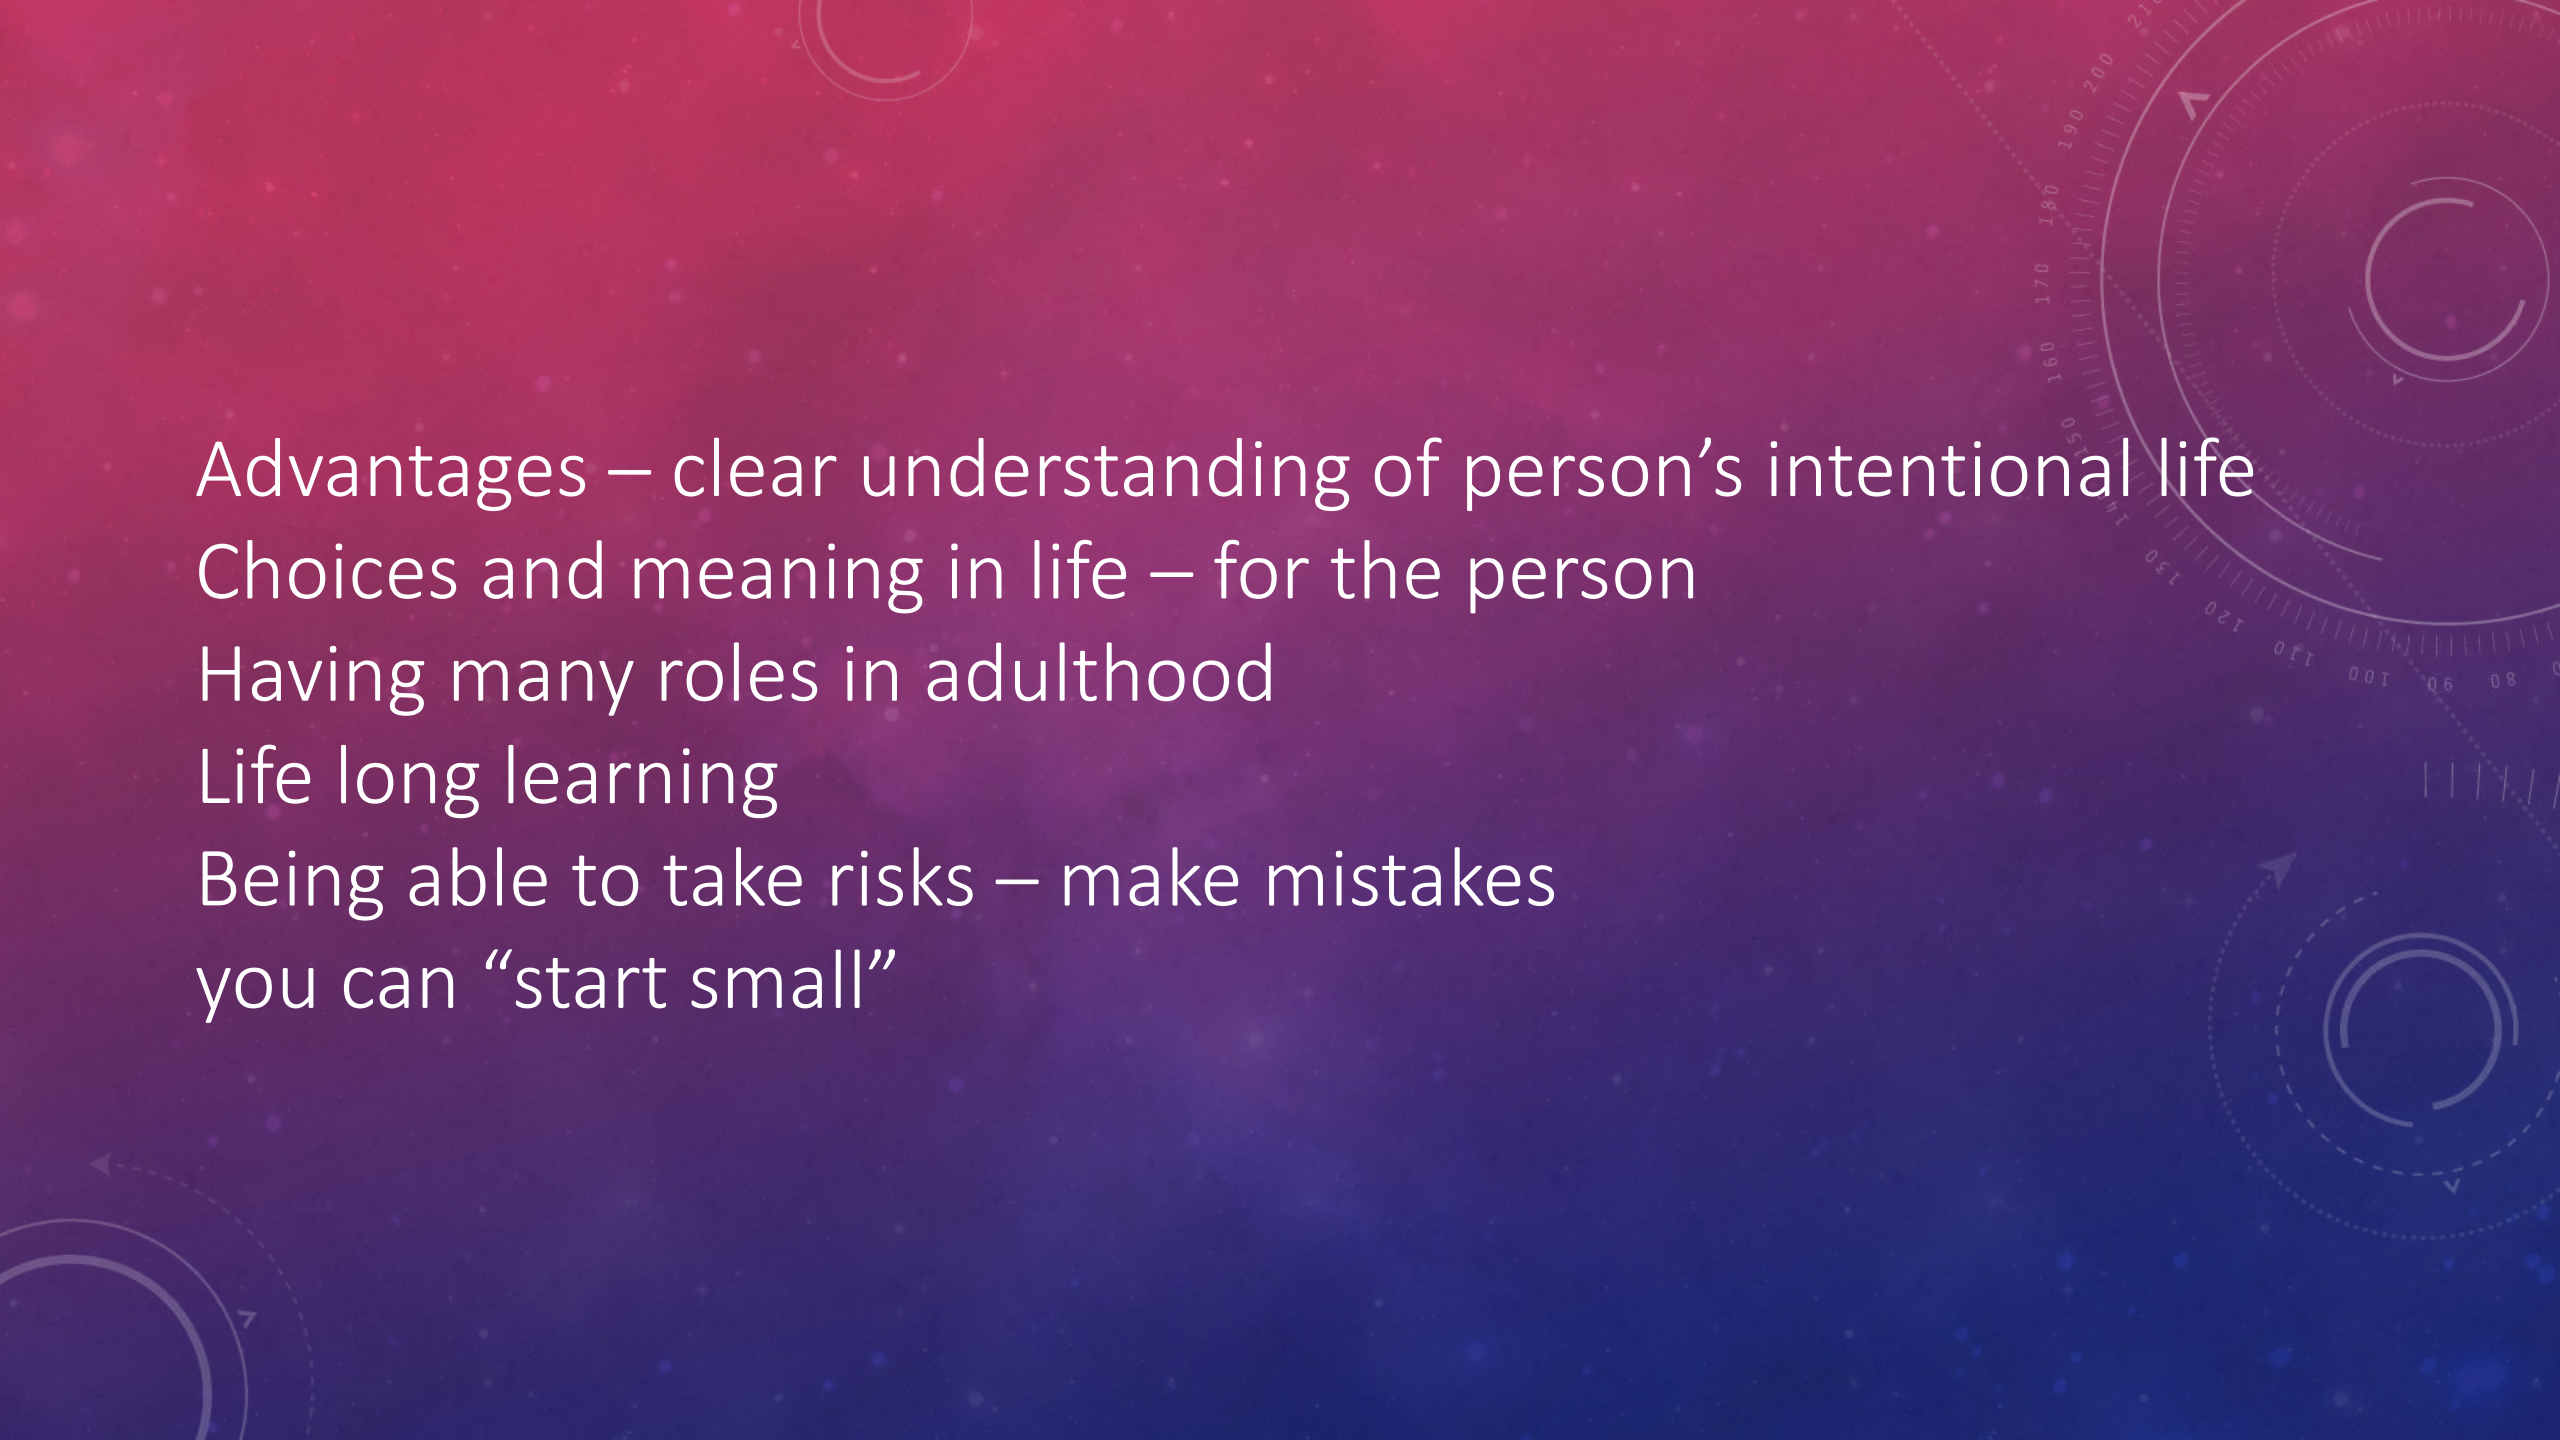

Finding out who the focus person is!

history, relationships, places, choices, what works/doesn't what is the person's dream?

what is the person's nightmare?

what are the person's strengths, talents?

what does the person need right now?

Advantages – clear understanding of person’s intentional life
Choices and meaning in life – for the person
Having many roles in adulthood
Life long learning
Being able to take risks – make mistakes you can “start small”

Controversies

not a quick fix for anything

seems like A LOT of work

some may not believe the person or want to only do what they think is right

.....inertia.....

The system

Where to start? Draw the person in or let them choose?

Assumptions – “it’s not safe” “they can’t do that”

Lack of support from others

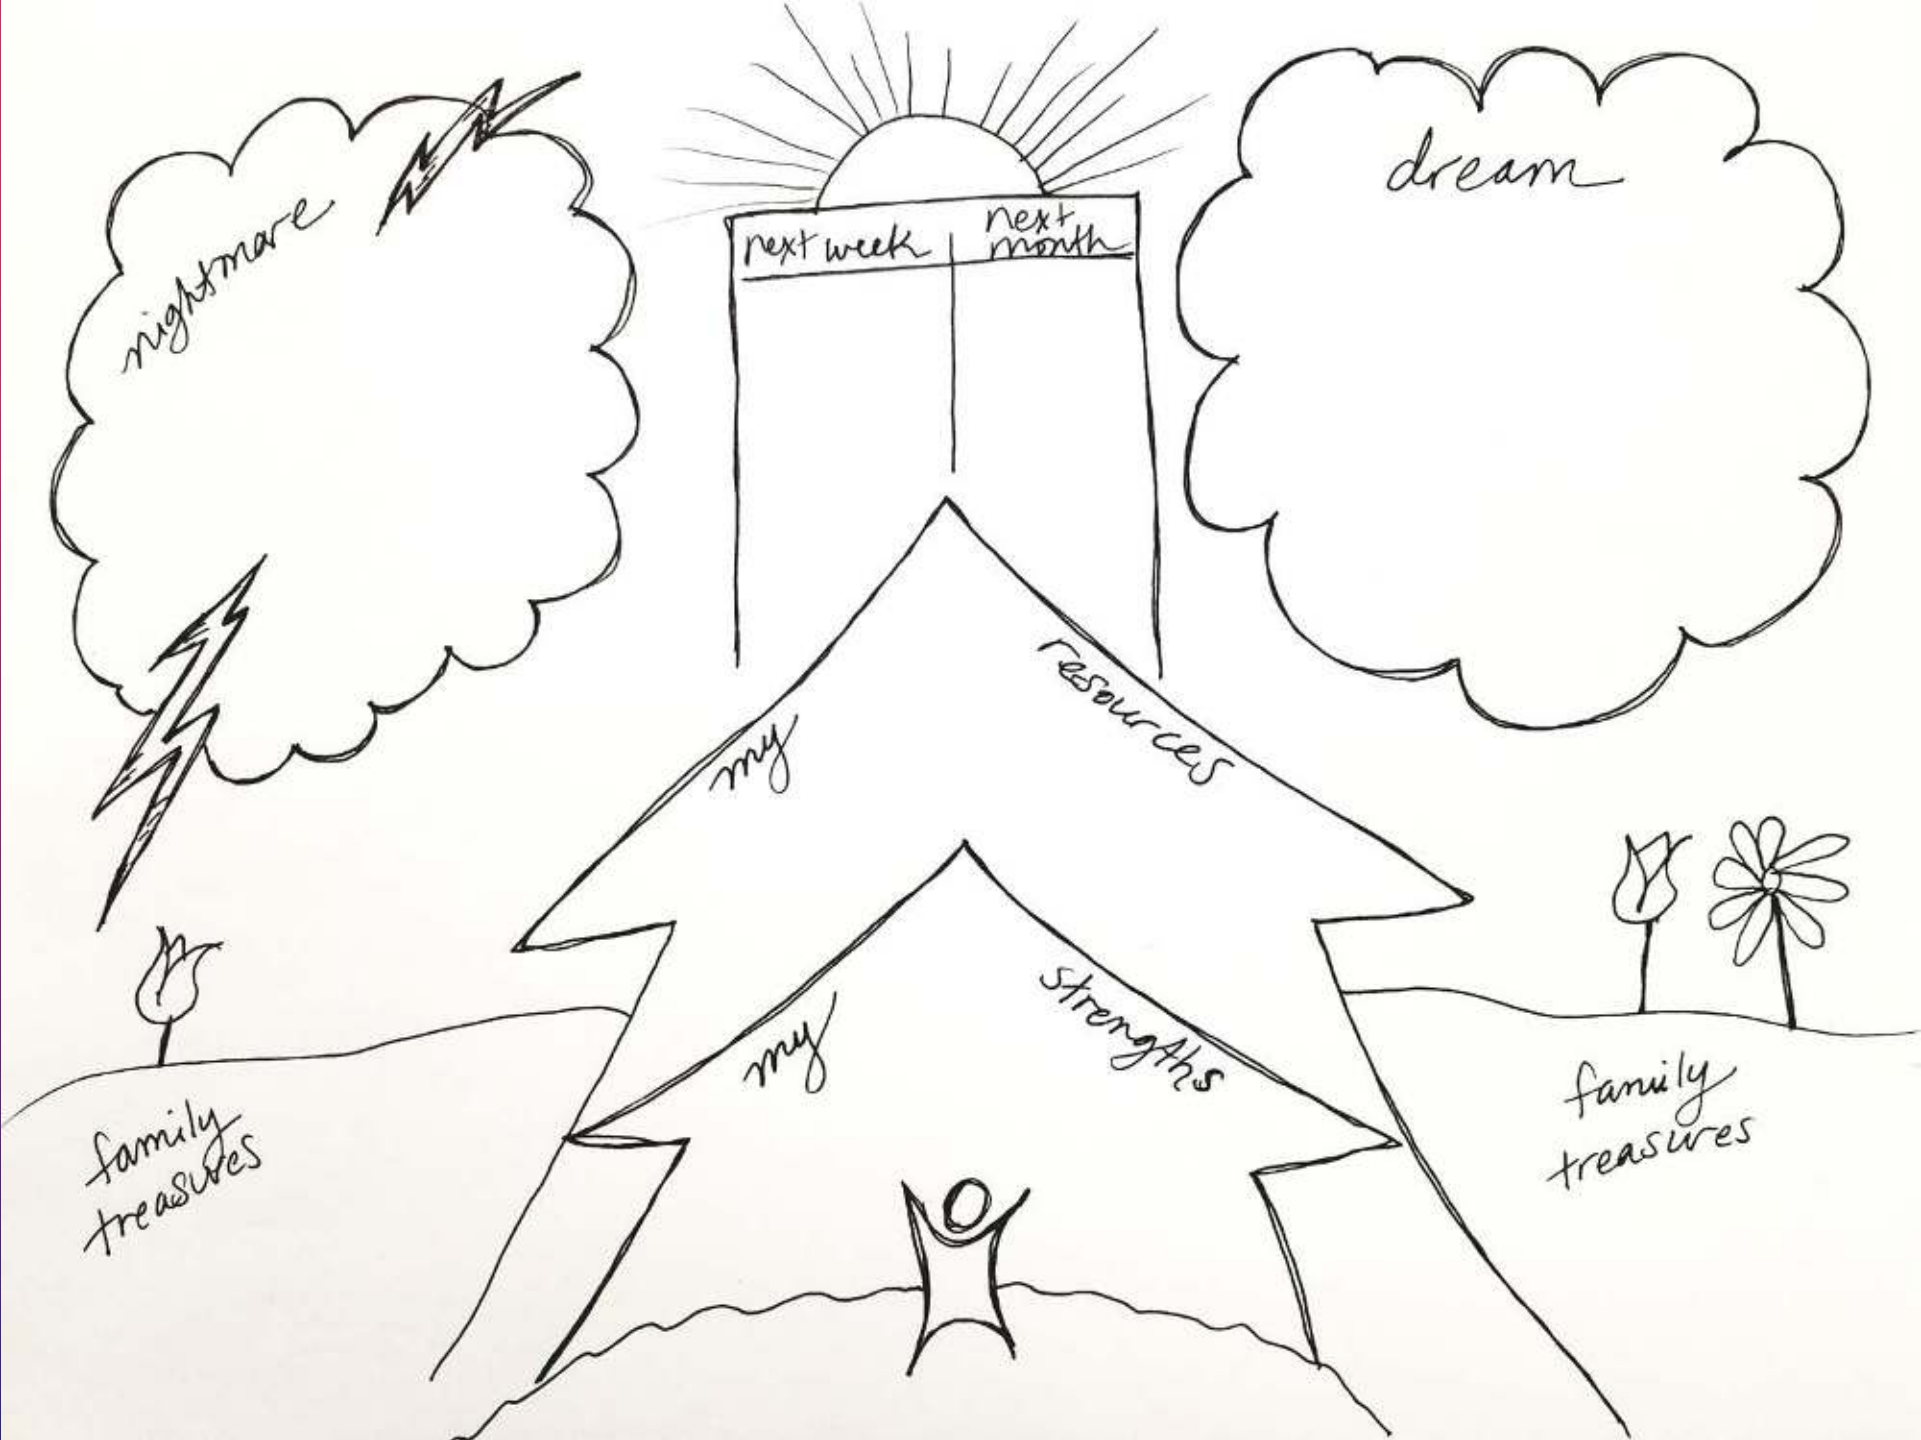

As parents we support our children.

To support his or her person centered future we must combine our love with OPTIMISM!

What do you need?

To be able to have a person centered plan for your child?

The background features a gradient from red at the top to blue at the bottom, overlaid with faint, semi-transparent circular patterns and lines, suggesting a technical or scientific theme.

PLANNING ALTERNATIVE TOMORROWS WITH HOPE

KARA.THRASHER-LIVINGSTON@ALASKA.GOV